Fishin' Story

Lost at Sea

I went fishing in the Bahamas one day. I made the mistake of borrowing someone's boat. As the sun started to set, I was afraid that I would not be able to see the coral reef so I cut across the deep water to get home safer. As I was headed home, the engine quit. I was in too deep of water to throw an anchor. When I did not arrive home that night, the locals called the Coast Guard. A plane found me the following day. They called to a boat to come and rescue me in seas that were so big it was hard to spot my little 15 foot boat. Come to find out, I ran out of gas. The person who lent me the boat failed to mention that the gas gauge did not work correctly. Moral to the story ... never borrow someone's boat!
